This was recently announced by current 2015 NWP president, Kelly Cavanagh, at the Nevada Women's Philanthropy 10 Year Grand Celebration on October 1, 2015 the Bellagio inside the Monet Ballroom.

The Nevada Women's Philanthropy was founded in November of 2005 by Dena duBoef, Heather duBoef, Marcelle Frey, Dana Lee, Trina Pascal and Tawny Sanders due to their desire to find a more directed and impactful way to participate in philanthropy. The organization is member driven, pooled fund, large impact grant making, established to address the needs of the greater Las Vegas community. Their membership consists of philanthropically motivated women, united by a powerful desire to address emerging issues facing our community in the areas of arts, education, environment, social services, and health.

Originally from Utah, Tami Hance has lived in Las Vegas for almost 30 years and considers herself a native. She is a graduate of UNLV holding a Bachelors of Arts degree, with an emphasis in communication studies. Tami has played a leading role at Destinations by Design, Inc., the largest destination management and special events company in Las Vegas, since 1990. She currently holds the position of senior vice president and has been a shareholder since 2007.

"NWP is such an inspired movement in philanthropy," Hance said. "I feel privileged to have been a part of the positive impact that it's had in our community and I look forward to forging new partnerships that continue to empower and uplift our community in the year ahead."

Giving back to the Las Vegas community is a priority for Tami. As the current vice president of Nevada Women's Philanthropy, she is also the 2015 chairman of the board for the Las Vegas Hospitality Association (LVHA), which is the largest hospitality organization in Southern Nevada. Tami was also honored to have been nominated to the MPI Foundation U.S. Council for 2014/2015, which helps to raise funds for education and industry research, driving the success of meeting professionals. When Tami is not juggling a busy event schedule and non-profit commitments, she enjoys spending time with her family, and outdoor activities such as hiking in Red Rock.
